FOREWORD

The Delavan community has for seventy-five years been laying away its dead in Spring Grove Cemetery, till now the number there placed has come to equal the number of our living. In respect for our dead, and in belief that the publication would also constitute a community service, those at present responsible have thought it fitting to put out this anniversary booklet. It contains complete record of interments, with locations. A brief survey of the Association and a list of its officers during the period have also been included.

HISTORY

The oldest portion of Spring Grove Cemetery is part of the ten acres acquired at cost of $1000 April 18, 1866, partly upland, partly marsh, lying north of the village and on the shore of the Delavan Pond. Plotting and fencing being done, dedication followed on July 14th, with addresses by the three clergymen, Joseph Collie, J. E. Johnson, and R. F. Curtis. In 1884 it had its first addition, a gift of five and a half acres from Jas. A. Aram. With these boundaries it came to end of century.

The characteristics of the Cemetery we are familiar with date from exchange of marsh area for the spur of upland thrusting to west with Mrs. K. A. Lathrop in 1901, constituting Addition No. 2, and from the new policy of maintenance then adopted. By that time the town was mostly free from fences, and had gone some way in the conformation of lot and street levels. Extending the movement to the Cemetery, the hedge enclosures which had been a conspicious earlier feature were required cut, and the ground so levelled as to permit general care of the greensward. And to this end the program of assessment of general up-keep dues was inaugurated. This was soon followed by the setting up of a general-care Endowment Fund; and this, in turn was brought to its present status under Wisconsin legislation of 1921, requiring collection of perpetual up-keep trust funds for all lots thereafter sold.

In 1911 a mausoleum of Indiana limestone containing 240 crypts was built by the International Mausoleum Co. on the left of the Cemetery entrance. This is a corporate undertaking, and is not an obligation upon the Association. Within the present year, Addition No. 3, comprising another five acres extending along the Pond north and east, has been opened. There is room for further expansion, on a site that both encourages and rewards the attention that has been and will be the policy of the Association officers.

EXECUTIVE OFFICERS
Past and Present

Throughout this period of seventy-five years, the Directors of Spring Grove Cemetery Association have served without money renumeration, many for long terms, and with much devotion. Is it not fitting that their names be here recorded?
